Levering Early, of the Staunton High School, took second honor, although the judges, Colonel B. O. James, Dr. W. S. Gordon and E. R. Chesterman, had to deliberate a long while before agreeing on the winner. There was a big crowd in the college chapel, and the contest was the best of the kind ever given here.

The top-notcher's from the different at home. Young Colonna's subject was "Ingersoll's Oration at His Brother's Grave." It gave him a fine opportunity to display his oratorical powers, and he had to display them to take the medal from young Early, whose subject was "Extracts From Webster's Reply to Hayne."

After the contest the speakers were entertained at a reception by the Mustigma Rho Literary Society. President Boatwright said last night that the program was carried out in a manner which reflected great credit on the contestants. "It was a fine event," he said, "and the audience showed its approval time and again by the heartlest and most friendly applause.

Get Extra Men to Remove Snow

The Administrative Board yester-day instructed Superintendent Cohn, of the Street Cleaning Department, to employ additional men, if necessary, to clear away the snow after it has ceased falling. City Engineer Bolling was instructed to place the hands and cart force of his department at the disposal of Superintendent Cohn.

There was much complaint less veloped Richmond last week, descended upon the city yesterday morning o'clock last night. The severity of the storm seriously impeded traffic, and o'clock last night. The severity of the storm seriously impeded traffic, and produced a situation which paralleled that of a week ago. A cold wind added to the discomfort and made its grasp more than ordinarily heavy. The weather prediction for yesterday was "fair."

Early in the day the storm began to interfere with street car traffic, and despite the constant work of the snow plows, threw the schedule badly out of kelter during the rush hours. The street railway companies used every resource to keep the tracks clear and the cars moving, and deserve no little credit for the manner in which they handled a difficult problem. Men with brooms supplemented the powerful snow plows and prevented the snow from banking in the streets where traffic is heaviest.

Snow and Fair To-Day.

No such assistance could come to the aid of motor and horse traffic, however, and both labored under a severe handicap all day. The fact that the snow fell constantly served to block any attempt of the Street Cleaning Department to clear the main thoroughfares. Horses went down on the slippery pavement everywhere. Automobiles were stalled in the drifts or came to grief on the hills.

Foot travel became difficult early in the day. Warned by the activity of the police after last week's storm, householders made earnest efforts to clear the sidewalks whenever there seemed to be a chance of a let-up in the storm. Such attempts to remove the snow were worse than futile until after nightfall. The whirling flakes, whipped by the wind, made walking unpleasant for those forced to use the streets.

Fair weather, preceded by snow, in the early morning is the prediction for Fair weather, preceded by snow, in the early morning is the prediction for to-day. Yesterday's snowfall is not expected to linger on the ground like that of last week. Superintendent Cohn promises to have his full force, augmented by as many helpers as possible, at work early this morning on the streets, and the city may look forward to better traffic conditions before noon.

ing which has been intensified by the protracted cold.

An earnest plea for money, food, clothing and supplies was issued last night by the officers of the Associated Charities. The demands made upon the charity organizations of the city are greater than those which any winter for years has brought forth. The slender resources are wiped out, and the suffering families look to the public for relief. Liberal contributions are sought by the Associated Charities, but small gifts will be gratefully received.

Help Needed To-Dny.

The Times-Dispatch received the following appeal last night from O. A. Hawkins, in behalf of the Associated Charities:

"For some months many of our citizens have been out of work. While the weather was mild, as it was, fortunately for them, until recently, they may have been able to struggle along keeping the wolf from the door. For the past ten days the weather has been very harsh, and fuel high in price, and their condition is very much worse.

"Our Associated Charities are doing all they can with the limited resources at their command. Now is the time for our considerate and generous people, who are able, to come to the aid of this organization and send to them money. Send what you can, if only one dollar or two or five; a few dollars now will help to relieve dire distress.

WON'T STOP SHOW UNLESS SMITH ATTEMPTS TO DANCE

Simon Hero, or Goat, of Its

Vaudeville Sketch.

Most pivotal events, whether they concern a nation or a city or a person, sooner or later find themselves done into a vaudeville sketch or a scenario for the movies. That's the way the Rotary Club justifies a new one-act near-tragedy, entitled "How Nathan Got the Money for the Tailors," which it will produce with an all-star cast on Tuesday night at the Lyric.

The author has so far preferred to remain in the background, but the lyrics are by Alvin M. Smith—a name with which to conjure in Richmond theatricals. The promoters were given advance assurance last night that the authorities will make no attempt to suppress the performance unless Horace F, Smith, who is down for the title role, attempts to dance.

The prospectus calls the play "almost a tragedy." It reduces to piquant vaudeville the adventures of Nathan on the third floor of the City Hall in search of municipal maxuma with which to provide wassall for the national convention of tailors. Of the general spirit of the dramist the official program has this to say:

"The action of the sketch is intensive and commences with the beginning. The 'motif is money, and the wonder of the audience will centre around the question, 'Will he get it?'

"Those who give close attention to Nathan in this sketch will note the
